

Margaret River in top 5 surf towns in Australia

Margaret River has been named in the top 5 surf towns in Australia by user-based adventure website Thrillseekeradventures.com.

Margaret River was named amongst Bells Beach, Gold Coast, Sydney and Byron Bay as one of the top 5 surf towns in Australia.

The blog author said that most people who have been to Australia stay on the East Coast – but affirmed that these people are “missing out”.

“Australia’s west coast offers some world class surfing in various places all the way up and down the coast and the most well-known town is Margaret River, with its Main Break, where the ASP tour event Margaret River Pro is held,” said the author.

“Powerful ground swells hit this area in the Australian winter and offer some of the world’s largest waves.

“Other than surfing, you’ll be happy to know that Margaret River is one of Australia’s best wine growing regions with endless places to taste world class wines along with a solid Aussie meal. Perfect fuel for the morning’s dawn patrol.”

Thrillseeker, which claims to be “built by thrillseekers for thrillseekers”, states that its mission is to “search the farthest corners of planet earth to bring you all the world’s adventures together in one place.”

Thrillseeker is designed to keep users in the know about the best trips, the top operators, the latest gear, key tips from pros and the biggest events happening in adventure sports.

The Margaret River region boasts a unique and diverse variety of tourism offerings all year around ranging from adventure activities, natural attractions, pristine beaches, world-class wineries, craft breweries, art galleries, fresh local produce and award winning dining experiences.

The Drug Aware Margaret River Pro is held in April each year. For more information or to book your surf trip, visit www.margaretriver.com.
